FORMER BEECH GROVE HIGH SCHOOL COMMUNICATIONS TEACHER

Radio Voice of '500' Jaynes headed for state broadcasters' hall of fame

By Steve Page Correspondent

The gift is still giving. In 1975, Wayne and Linda Jaynes gave their son, Mark, a cassette recorder for Christmas. He immediately began recording himself as he watched football games and races on television. Mark is still on the air. Among all those events he has covered, Mark Jaynes is best known for becoming the radio voice of the Indianapolis

500. For all that he has done, Jaynes has been named to the Indiana Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association (ISSA) Hall of Fame.

He and five others will be inducted at the ISSA annual awards banquet on Sunday, April 7, at Valle Vista Country Club in Greenwood.

Joining him will be retired Associated Press sports editor Steve Herman, the late John Bansch of the Indianapolis Star, Russ Brown of the Louisville Courier-Journal, John Montgomery of WNDI Radio in Sullivan and Jack Nolan of WNDU South Bend and Notre Dame Athletics

"I was quite surprised," Jaynes said earlier this month. "With all the people who have helped me and who are in the hall, it's very humbling."

Jaynes, who is also a key cog in the IHSAA's Champions Network, was the ISSA's 2018 recipient of the Marv Bates Indiana Sportscaster of the Year Award.

"I always seemed to be in the right place at the right time," Jaynes said. "If it all ended now, I would have accomplished everything beyond my wildest dreams."

But Mark Jaynes is still at it.

He's still the voice of the "500" and works with the IHSAA, but his favorite part is his current title: communications instructor for his alma mater, Monrovia High School. Before teaching at Monrovia, he taught communications classes at Beech Grove High School. "The most rewarding thing, what I enjoy the most, is teaching the kids at Monrovia," he said. "This is where the legacy is, quite frankly."

BEGINNINGS

"When I was a student in 1975 at Hall (Elementary), the principal helped me get started," he said of Nyle Denny.

"He said, You're not very good at baseball, but you love sports and you can't keep your mouth shut, so you should try broadcasting." So he did.

"In my sophomore year at high school, I started working morning reports at WCBK," Jaynes said. "I had two stints at WCBK. I did a couple years in the morning news and whatever they would let me do. That group of "they" included Dave Keister, Dave Sakel and John Taylor.

"I want to thank those people who gave a high school kid a shot. That will always be a special time for me. I'm very, very fond of that radio station."

Back at Monrovia, Jaynes also had help from teachers and coaches, including Wayne Stahley, Jim Kaiser, Doug Coddington, Dave Oberle, Phil Schneider and Mary Wood.

"Mark Jaynes was a manager when I was coaching at Monrovia," said Oberle. "We needed an announcer. I asked him if he had ever announced before. He hasn't shut up since!"

Upon graduation, Jaynes attended Indiana State University, where he continued his broadcasting career with ISU campus radio station WTHI. There, he worked with Barry Kent and Dave Liston. "That led me to the (Indianapolis) radio network," Jaynes said. "I got married (Desiree)

First-term mayor Jim Coffman knows Main Street in Beech Grove.

After all, he owns a business, Epstein Shoe Store, in the heart of the town that he now governs. The shoe store celebrated its 100th anniversary last year. He purchased the store in 2012, saving a longtime business on Main Street.

He knows how to run a business, to make it thrive, and to provide customer satisfaction throughout.

Coffman also has served as clerk-treasurer of the city (Beech Grove) within a city (Indy) and has worked with department heads on their budgets. After 74 days at the city's

After 74 days at the city's helm, Coffman recently gave his first State of the City address at the monthly Greater Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the Hornet Park Community Center.

Coffman's review included the city's progress under retired three-term mayor Dennis Buckley, but he gave a few hints about his first term goals. He wants the city to be more transparent with its residents and will move the mayor's office from the back to the front of City Hall.

Primarily, he wants city officials and its residents to be unified in moving the city forward.

"We must vow to work together," Coffman urged. "We must vow to support each other. If we make these two simple vows, the city that we love will flourish and thrive and 2024 will prove to be another successful year. And with your help the state of our city will continue to be strong for years to come."

His focus is on public safety and quality of life.

Coffman and the city's redevelopment commission seek to develop the vacant Safeway/DQ property, medical arts buildings, old landfill, and

He also praised the Main Street Initiative for bringing people to the heart of Beech Grove for events on the street that "is bustling because of the hard work of our business owners and organizations."

He viewed the fully staffed police department and said, "Our officers are fighting big city crime, while continuing to provide the small city services that our citizens have come to expect and deserve. Citizens can still call about things that larger police departments do not have the resources nor the mandate to respond to."

The new mayor also vowed to continue the city's cooperation with Beech Grove City Schools.

He also plans a workshop with the city council to share ideas and priorities.

"During these four years as mayor, we will do more than ever to ensure our citizens know what is happening in our city," said Coffman, who emphasized that the city's website has been overhauled.

Coffman also outlined the achievements of several departments and their department heads and also revealed some projects this year, including a $647,000 Community Crossing grant for street repaving, completing the Phase II sewer rehab project. finishing the McFarland Creek stormwater project, expanding of the food pantry at Hornet Park Community Center, opening of a police department gun range and training center plus ProTeam Wellness for officers' emotional and mental health, and observing the 50th anniversary of the senior citizens center on Main Street.

Many department heads attended the chamber luncheon. Coffman pointed out that they have a combined 181 years of service to the city, beginning with this year.

EMMA DONNAN 2-5 GRADERS ACHIEVE MORE THAN DOUBLE READING GROWTH

These students at Emma Donnan Elementary School show visitors their stations where they have individualized virtual learning of reading skills through Ignite Reading.

Emma Donnan Elementary and Middle school faculty, staff, and students have achieved huge reading gains by secondthrough fifth-grade students at the near-Southside school.

Ignite Reading leaders joined in a two-hour display of literacy gains by participating students who have achieved an average of 2.5 weeks of reading progress, more than double the rate expected in traditional classrooms.

Visitors were able to observe students at computers for individualized virtual learning and could speak with educators about the nationally acclaimed program.

The school is two years into its partnership with Adelante Schools at Emma Donnan where the results were consistent among all student groups, including students of color, individuals with IEPs, multilingual learners, and those receiving free or reduced-priced lunches.

The Ignite Reading program provides one-to-one virtual reading instruction with a trained

Take precautions before and during the eclipse

By Sarah Stelzner, M.D. Eskenazi Health

On April 8 the moon will block the sun fully, darkening the sky for just a few minutes as the sun's corona — a ring of white light usually invisible to us — appears. Since Central Indiana is lucky enough to be in the path of totality, we are in an ideal spot for viewing the total solar eclipse. Eager visitors from other states will fill nearby hotels and campsites to experience what will happen right outside our doors. The Indiana state government website estimates the eclipse will occur from around 1:45 p.m. until about 4:30 p.m., with totality ending around 3:15 p.m. Enjoy this rare event, but still use caution. Looking directly at the sun can cause vision damage, and unscrupulous venders are promising their eclipse viewers/sunglasses are far safer than they are. For example, their products are "NASA certified" since NASA states on their site that they have not certified any particular brands. The American Astronomical Society does vouch for certain safe options (https://eclipse.aas.org/ eye-safety/viewers-filters) and recommends that the glasses you purchase or borrow from others meet the ISO 12312-2 international standard (https:// eclipse.aas.org/eye-safety/isocertification).

beware of any sellers promising

Unfortunately, the most affordable and safe viewers and glasses are selling out fast or might not be delivered on time, so consider an old-fashioned alternative, the pinhole camera/ projector (https://eclipse.aas. org/eye-safety/projection). You can make one with simple items from home. If you use a pinhole camera correctly, you can observe this stunning sight safely Remember, however, to never directly view the sun through that pinhole. Instructions for building pinhole cameras can be found at https://www.jpl.nasa. gov/edu/learn/project/how-tomake-a-pinhole-camera. You can also find a link to NASA's video on how to make the popular cereal box version at the end of those instructions.

Pinhole cameras are a good option, but avoid actual cameras, camera phones, binoculars and telescopes during the eclipse. Consider putting these optical devices out of reach to avoid temptation. Even safe glasses will not protect your eyes if you use a camera to view the sun during the eclipse. filters that can make these devices safe to use, the American Astronomical Society advises only "experienced observers" use them. In other words, if you are not an astronomer, set optical devices aside. Kids are at risk too, so parents, make sure your children are wearing eclipse glasses or avoiding directly looking at the sun before, during and just after the totality and ensure their optical devices are unavailable. Traffic will be intense right after the eclipse ends, comparable to 71 sell-out Colts games being released at once according to some experts. Experts also predict that a two-hour drive could take 10 hours. A full gas tank, a cell phone charger, plentiful snacks and water and a lot of patience will help you get through this exciting day safely. Should you hurt your eyes during the eclipse, an eye specialist can help. Call Eskenazi Health Connections to set up an appointment at 317-880-7666. With just a few precautions, you can enjoy this rare experience and know your vision is protected.

tutor in the Science of Reading that focuses on each student's specific gaps.

The students have 15-minutes daily with a virtual tutor to help them become independent readers. The program is integrated into the school day which helps classroom teachers by providing individualized instruction for every student.

Eddie Rangel, Adelante Schools' CEO commented. "This partnership ensures every student builds a strong literacy foundation, the key to future success in life. We're excited to continue this program and supercharge reading progress for even more students.

Even Ignite Reading's founder/CEO Jessica Reid Sliwerski admitted the reading progress at Emma Donnan Elementary School is "remarkable" and that partnering with the school is making a real difference with the school's dedicated students, families, and educators.

Emma Donnan is a K-8 public charter school that is . managed by non-profit Adelante in partnership with Indianapolis Public Schools and the Indianapolis Mayor's office. The once-beleaguered public school now focuses on high-quality teachers and research-based curriculum.

The Ignite Reading program also helps take the burden of differentiated instruction off teachers and has had a tremendous impact at Emma Donnan Flementary School 1202 F Trov Avenue. The school's motto is: "Pushing onwards towards the future.

The school is named in honor of Emma Donnan, who was the longest serving educator in the city at the time of her retirement as teacher and principal in 1928.

Indiana is one of 13 states where Ignite Reading partners with schools and districts with thousands of students to improve reading skills and eventually develop students who can thrive as fluent readers.

New business adventure

I have written over 700 hundred articles that have been published in The Southsider Voice. I have totally enjoyed writing them and sharing many of my stories. The folks that put together this newspaper each week are amazing.

So, with regrets, I must inform everyone that I am about to begin a new and extremely exciting business. I have been interested in this type of business for an exceedingly long time. I have studied and had discussions with many people and companies that I thought could be possible customers.

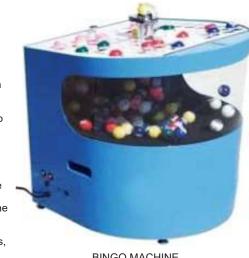

The more I discussed my ideas with friends, family, and possible customers, the more excited I became. It took quite a while to research the equipment needed and reconfigure my special little outside building that has always been known as "The Hideout." It will now also be my working office and the building where the product will be developed.

I will be receiving telephone calls from all over the world. I will have an extremely efficient telephone system installed. I plan to keep my personal cell phone number and also our house phone. The business phone will have an 800 number.

My new business will be involved in the medical prescription business. I have been interested for several years when I hear the name of a new medicine. I have been told that companies that produce medicine have a large staff that works to put together an interesting and proper name for each new medicine that they develop

I received delivery last week of my order that will allow me to begin my new adventure. I located a company that makes and sells BINGO machines. They converted one so that it can provide all of the letters in our alphabet. I have it set up and it seems to provide what I require perfectly.

Phar maceutical companies will provide me with a small amount of information about their new product. They can also provide up to five letters of the alphabet that they require in the new medicine name. I then will start up the machine and let it choose several letters, including the ones required. I then can remove all the remaining little white balls with letters on them and install the chosen ones. The special chosen letters will be recorded in order and that will become the chosen name for that new medicine

I will give you an example. Let us say that I was told to have the following letters in the name. (K C W) The name should have at least nine letters in the name. The machine provided the following, Miclxmkaw. That would be the official name for that new medicine.

I sent out information about my new business to pharmaceutical companies all over the country. I will begin providing names for about 65 responses very soon. I just received today's mail and have five more names to create.

In looking ahead to the ISSA awards ceremony, Jaynes said, "A lot of people deserve to be there, especially my family my wife, Desiree, my daughter Lauren and my son Evan. He's the defensive backs coach at Ben Davis. My daughter's the assistant principal at Western Boone. Desiree is coach's wife and a traveling broadcaster's wife.

EUGENE "GENE" W. MCCLARNEY, April 11, 1929 – March 15, 2024 Eugene "Gene" W. McClarney, 94, of Indianapolis, passed away Friday, March 15, 2024 in Indianapolis. Gene was a longtime resident of Indianapolis. His parents were Mary Blonnie (Dixon) and Holt McClarney. He is survived by his companion, Barbara Ritter. Gene is also survived by two children, four grandchildren, and one great-grandchild from his marriage to Bertha (Davidson) McClarney who passed away in 2008. Also surviving are two additional sons from a previous marriage.

Gene was the owner of McClarney's Famous Restaurant from 1978 until he retired in 1993. Located on the Southside of Indianapolis and well known for their home-cooked meals and family friendly service, McClarney's Restaurant started in 1928 as a lunch-car owned and operated by George and Lucille McClarney, eventually partnering with Wayne McClarney. Gene joined the family business in 1954 after returning from service in the United States Air Force. In 1978, Gene purchased Mc-Clarney's Restaurant from his family.

Gene was also an enthusiastic and talented photographer who pursued his hobby with great devotion and attention to detail. Gene earned growing recognition in several photography contests and often displayed his work at many art galleries and shows. Gene's photography hobby inspired him to travel the world and photograph many interesting and exotic places, including the southern hills of Indiana. Gene was a member of the Columbia Club of Indianapolis and a founding member of the Lake Lemon Conservancy District.

The family would like to express their gratitude to caregivers: Bruce Webb and Nina Antonio, as well as Doug Rose. The family would also like to thank their dear friends, Ben and Jessie Miller and Gloria and Dean Eller.

A graveside service will be held Thursday, March 28, 2024 at 11:30 a.m. at Washington Park East Cemetery, 10612 E. Washington St., Indianapolis, IN 46229. Final care and arrangements are entrusted to Shirley Brothers Fishers-Castleton Chapel www.shirleybrothers.com.

Reinbold lines up Hunter-Reay and Daly for upcoming Indianapolis 500

(PENSKE ENTERTAINMENT CORP. PHOTO BY JOE SKIBINSKI) Drever & Reinbold team owner Dennis Reinbold, who also owns a Greenwood auto dealership, will field a two-car All-American team in the upcoming Indianapolis 500.

By Al Stilley Editor

A few years ago, IndyCar driver Conor Daly's passenger car broke down on the Northside near Dreyer & Reinbold auto dealership headquarters.

Daly reached out to dealership and Indianapolis 500 co-team owner Dennis Reinbold who provided Daly with a loaner car.

Reinbold laughed because Daly brought the loaned Subaru in one piece back to the dealership but neither Reinbold nor Daly were sure if the car was returned with a full tank of fuel.

Fast forward to 2024, Reinbold again is placing Daly in a car, not just any car, but the No. 24 Dreyer and Reinbold Racing/Don Cusick Motorsports Dallara-Chevrolet for the upcoming 108th running of the Indianapolis 500. Daly's teammate will be 2014 "500" winner Ryan Hunter-Reay in the No. 23 entry

In a meeting earlier this year at the Speedway's media center, the popular Daly said, "I made sure that was in the deal for this month of May, to have a nice loaner vehicle ... I'm extremely thankful for the belief that Dennis has in me and the chance to drive one of his cars at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.'

Daly started 16th and finished eighth in last year's "500" driving for Speedrome Legends Cars graduate and IndyCar team owner Ed Carpenter. He finished sixth in 2022 for Carpenter Racing.

Daly, a second-generation racecar driver, also has become a social media personality.

Daly and comedian Joey Mulinaro have a weekly podcast show, "Main Street," a new content alliance with Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s Dirty Mo Media. He drove Pacers' star Tyrese Haliburton in an IndyCar two-seater on Indy's streets to the NBA All-Star Tip-Off Party earlier this month. And last weekend, he was with the Thermal Creator Team for behind the scenes coverage of The Thermal Club $1 Million Challenge NTT IndyCar non-points event.

The podcasts and social media are a sideshow for Daly who hasn't lost site of the team's goal.

"The Indy 500 is without a doubt my ultimate goal," Daly said. "To win, I want to be like Ryan and to be able to know what the milk tastes like. Obviously to be able to do that for Dennis would be amazing."

Hunter-Reay started 18th in the 2023 "500," led eight laps, and finished 11th in a DRR/Cusick Motorsports entry. His racecar was hampered by a broken front wing adjustor; otherwise, Hunter-Reay believed he was headed for a top-five finish. He takes aim at his 16th "500" in May.

In a twist of fate, Hunter-Reay replaced Daly last season in the last nine IndyCar races with Carpenter. He and Daly were teammates in 2019 with Andretti Autosport, and now they are teammates again with Reinbold, who also owns an auto dealership in Greenwood.

"I don't know how many cars we had in the garage," Hunter-Reay recalled of his tenure with Andretti Autosport. "There's a whole lot of noise at that point, a whole lot of information buzzing around. It's really tough to focus on really what matters. I think in this situation, this environment with this team (DRR), I think it gives us the opportunity to push forward."

Hunter-Reay savors the DRR team's attention on the "500" with a two-car team.

"It was an absolute pleasure working with Dennis, the entire team," he said. "It was refreshing to see the motivation in everyone's faces from day one. Just what they put into this event is special."

He emphatically added, "We'll focus on what matters, that's going out and winning the Indy 500, the greatest race in the world.'

DRR is observing its 25th year in IndyCar after being among the early Indy Racing League entries and winning a race at Orlando, Florida. Reinbold has consistently focused on the "500" and has a championship team that competes in NitroCross.

"Indy was the core of what we did," Reinbold reflected. "We didn't have enough sponsorship to be able to really invest in all disciplines of racing, so we focused on Indy. We've sort of evolved to where all our time and testing, our year-round focus for the program is just directed toward the Indy 500."

DRR is among quality "one-off" entries for the 108th running of the "500" including Kyle Larson with Arrow-McLaren-Hendrick and Helio Castroneves with Meyer Shank, among others.

- "Our only goal is to win this race," Reinbold attested. "We're a little past due to win this thing."
- Qualifications for the "500" are Saturday-Sunday, May 18-19 with Race Day on Sunday, May 26.

NCAA teams and Basketball Blitz advertisers roll into Sweet 16

By Al Stilley Editor

Sixteen NCAA men's basketball teams and 11 different advertisers in The Southsider Voice's Basketball Blitz contest are alive for the Sweet 16 that unfolds Thursday and Friday this year's tourney as evidenced by 7-4 Zach Edey's combined performances of 53 points and 35 rebounds and his short but intense post-game comments.

"No pressure, just basketball," Edey said Sunday after the Boilers manhandled Grambling at Gainbridge Fieldhouse downtown.

Purdue faces No. 5 seed Gonzaga (Jockish Flowers) Friday in Detroit with No. 2 Tennessee (IU Credit Union) colliding with No. 3 Creighton (Bert and Den's Grille) with the winner's meeting Sunday to advance to the Final Four.

Basketball Blitz (March 20 edition). The Southsider Voice staff randomly matched each business with advertising spots they purchased. At the tournament's conclusion, the top four business finishers win free advertising.

with the Elite Eight taking place Saturday and Sunday.

All No. 1 seeds made it through their tests with Houston and Purdue (each Duane Lytle Landscaping), defending national champion Connecticut (Keenan-Stahl Boys & Girls Club), and North Carolina (Steele Auto Sales). Houston barely escaped Texas A&M in overtime Sunday night.

And yes, Virginia; there is Purdue. The Boilers are trying to accomplish what Virginia did in 2018 and 2019 after a historic loss to a No. 16 seed and then winning the national championship one vear later.

Purdue, after rolling over its first two opponents (Grambling, 78-50 and Utah State, 106-67), has Boiler Nation abuzz while putting last year's opening loss to No. 16 Fairleigh-Dickinson farther in the rearview mirror.

The more seasoned Boilers began their mission to go deep in IU Credit Union also has No. 3 Illinois in the East and No. 4 Alabama in the West. The Fighting Illini face No. 2 Iowa State (B. Davis Remodeling), and the rugged Tide meet North Carolina. Connecticut collides with No. 5 San Diego State (Raymond James) in the East. No. 2 Arizona (Fred and Sons) faces No. 6 Clemson (laria's) in the West.

The Cinderella carriage has only one passenger, No. 11 North Carolina State (Duane Lytle Landscaping), that defeated No. 6 Texas Tech, 80-67 and No. 14 Oakland, 79-73. The Wolfpack has won seven games in 12 days, including their improbable run of five wins in five days to capture the ACC tournament and automatic NCAA tourney bid. Former Perry Meridian standout Jayden Taylor, a transfer from Butler is a valuable sixth man for NC State that faces No. 2 Marquette (laria's). No. 4 Duke (Heimel Auction) goes up against Houston.

With multiple entries, IU Credit Union teams Baylor and Grand Canyon fell in the second round.

Southside businesses purchased 68 advertising spots in the

Among The Southsider Voice staff members, correspondent Steve Page, a veteran sportswriter, leads the way with 14 teams remaining including all four picks for the Final Four. Special project representative Bob Kelly is next with 12 teams left, including all four picks for the Final Four. Bob White, community outreach, an editor Al Stilley have 10 teams left with three alive for the Final Four. The Final Four unfolds in Phoenix Saturday, April 6 with the NCAA championship game Monday, April 8.

Southside church's 100th anniversary voted top story of 2023

By Al Stilley Editor

You, our loyal readers, have spoken with your ballots and have named the 100th anniversary celebration of Bethany Evangelical Lutheran Church as the Southsider Voice's top story of 2023.

A post-Covid record number of ballots was submitted by our readers as far away as Elizabethtown, Shelbyville, and Martinsville.

The church, a familiar site on the Southside at the northwest corner of US 31 South and I-465, not only has cared for its congregation for a century but also has a garden that grows food for needy Southside residents.

The page one story about the church's 100th anniversary barely nosed out the devastating spring tornado that swept through the heart of Whiteland and devastated a distribution complex under construction near I-65.
