Love Your Neighbor Center provides pantry, homeless shelter for males 18 years and older

By Bob Kelly Feature writer

A food pantry to serve people facing food insecurity has blossomed recently in the former Saint Elizabeth Coleman Center on Churchman Avenue near Beech Grove.

Now known as the Love Your Neighbor Center, the food pantry is open Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. (Note: it will be closed Wednesday, July 4. and Saturday, July 6). The center also houses a shelter for men.

The seeds for opening a pantry and providing a men's shelter were planted several years ago when executives of the St. Vincent de Paul Society-Indianapolis (SVdP Indy) purchased the former Saint Elizabeth Coleman Center in May 2022. Its first resident moved into the shelter in July of 2023.

One of the staples of this facility will be the food pantry. The building also includes a homeless shelter for adult males 18 years and older, SVdP Indy's administrative branch and the Changing Lives Forever Program.

SVdP Indy serves the most vulnerable in our community. It provides the most basic human needs: food, clothing, diapers, beds, and more. The Catholic nonprofit dedicates itself to providing people of all faiths with a pathway out of poverty – one rooted in love, support, and skills training to build a sustainable future.

Crystal Wiley, the director of the Love Your Neighbor Center, told The Southsider Voice about the facility and its food pantry mission. "We want to be good neighbors as we move into this community and we want to feed our neighbors and make an impact, too."

She explained that SVdP

"We want to be good neighbors as we move into this community and we want to feed our neighbors and make an impact, too."

- Crystal Wiley, director of the Love Your Neighbor Center

Two of the rooms in the center are equipped with TVs and games for the residents to enjoy.

Indy provides supportive housing, programming, and services to unsheltered individuals to assist with self-sufficiency, stability, sustainability, and success. The food pantry is one of those services.

'We have 13-bedroom suites with full bathrooms, four designated areas equipped with TVs, arts/crafts, health and wellness, computers, and a resource area," Wiley said to The Southsider Voice.

The facility now serves as headquarters for its administration staff which moved to it in the fall of 2023. It moved from its previous headquarters at 3001 E. 30th Street and the food pantry followed in the summer of 2024. It will serve Southside residents whose zip codes are 46107 and 46203.

Wiley estimates the food pantry will serve 150 neighbors a week and will need four to six volunteers a shift. The food pantry is funded by grants and private donors.

One way the organization has used the additional space in its new digs compared to the former facility is by collaborating with individuals, leaders, staff, community partners, and residents to dedicate operations at a macro level to promote systemic change for social justice.

In addition, SVdP Indy connects with community partners for growth opportunities and collaboration to broaden perspectives for continued development. "We are doing our best to make the most of it," Wiley said. "We are all fortunate to be in the position to work at this wonderful place because it allows us to help others."

SVdP Indy originated in the 1940s; the parent organization was founded in Paris, France in 1833. It now is out to serve those many others through its food shelter on the Southside of Indianapolis.

RD'S LAST GAME

I have a fun breakfast each month with fellows that I worked with while I was employed as a charter bus driver. I worked part-time and mostly did local assignments. For several years, I worked with NBA Basketball Teams while they were in Indianapolis to play against the Pacers.

On one such occasion during the 1991-92 season, I drove out to the airport to meet the Boston Celtics. At that time, many in the NBA believed that Larry Bird was playing his final season. This was probably the last time he would be in Indianapolis to compete against the Pacers.

After all the Celtics equipment was loaded and the players were seated, I began the trip downtown to their hotel. As we headed up the ramp to the Airport Expressway, I noticed a couple of television cameramen recording us. Within about a half-mile, we encountered a couple more guys taping us as we passed.

I smiled as I was thinking about how much attention was being given to Bird's last game in Indianapolis. Upon our arrival at the Weston Hotel, a couple of guys met us and asked the coaches to step off of the bus while everyone else stayed seated. They talked for several minutes before an assistant coach returned to the bus and released the players and staff except for one player, but it was not Larry Bird.

I later found out that the detained player had been involved in a hit-and-run accident in the Boston area the previous evening; it was not until after the flight had departed that law enforcement had put all the pieces together.

Things become much clearer then. Those camera operators were not as much interested in Larry Bird's last game in Indy as they were in the breaking story about the hit-and-run accident in Boston. They had followed us downtown and were setting up their cameras near the bus. Soon, that player and all of the fellows talking with him exited the bus and went inside the hotel. That was the last I heard about the incident for a few years.

One of the Celtics players was Robert "The Chief" Parish. We hit it off quickly and enjoyed chatting each time the Celtics were in town. A few years later, he became a member of the Chicago Bulls and was in the starting line-up with Michael Jordan, Scottie Pippen and Dennis Rodman.

On one occasion, as "The Chief" and I were talking, I asked him if he remembered that hit-and-run incident. He told me that the player had been convicted and served some time before moving to

He told me that the player was a good guy that had made a couple of bad mistakes. He also explained that the guy had learned from those mistakes and was really doing a respectable job of piecing his life back together. I do not remember that player's name, but I will never forget the concern and passion in "The Chief's" voice as

Bird finished the season and became a member of the 1992 Olympic squad, known as "The Dream Team". He was later named as the coach of the Pacers before becoming the president of bas-

Over the years he was honored by the NBA as Most Valuable Player, Coach of the Year and Executive of the Year. He might be the only one to have received all three of those awards.

By Franciscan Health Communications

Franciscan Health Cancer Center Indianapolis recently received a generous donation of 100 blankets from Dreyer & Reinbold Subaru and the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society (LLS)

Patients at the Franciscan Health Cancer Center will receive the blankets, which they can use during treatments and also take home with them.

"We are grateful for the continued support of Subaru and Dreyer & Reinbold through this generous program," said Joan Himebrook, accreditation and community outreach coordinator for the Franciscan Health Cancer Center. "The blankets and art kits bring comfort to our patients during their treatment and beyond."

The Dreyer & Reinbold team, based on U.S. 31 South in Greenwood, also brought 50 art activity kits for the children whose parents are undergoing bone marrow and stem cell transplants.

Patients will benefit from the annual blanket donation from Dreyer & Reinbold Subaru to Franciscan Health Care Cancer Center.

"It means a lot to us to be able to donate the blankets and art kits," said Andy Thimlar, sales manager, Dreyer & Reinbold Subaru. "Subaru does a lot for the community. To be able to see the warmth and care it brings to the patients is priceless. We have been doing this for a few years now and look forward to continuing in the future.

The donations are part of the "Loves to Care" program, a health-focused initiative of Subaru's national philanthropic platform.

The Franciscan Health cancer center is at 8111 S. Emerson Ave., Suite 101.

The blankets will be presented to patients undergoing treatment at the Franciscan Health Indiana Blood & Marrow Transplantation (IBMT) unit. The program is one of only two facilities – and the first - in Indiana offering full-service transplant care, including bone marrow and stem cell transplants. The unit specializes in treating leukemia, Hodgkin or non-Hodgkin lymphoma, multiple myeloma and other blood disorders.
